If it has been 3 years since your child support order was entered, modified or reviewed, you may request a review. Complete the attached request form indicating this to be the reason for your request.

- A child needs to be added to the order due to birth or change in physical custody. Provide child's name and birth date.

- The parent who owes child support is incarcerated for 180 or more consecutive days.
- Work-related child care expenses increase or decrease by at least 25%. Submit a statement from the child care provider that specifies the child care cost and the name(s) of the child(ren) in the provider's care.

The Division will conduct a review if a special circumstance applies to the other party and you cannot obtain the required documentation. However, as the requesting party, you must provide an explanation of the other party's special circumstance.

You must indicate the reason for the request. If your request is based on a change in circumstance, the change must qualify as one of the special circumstances listed above. Clearly state the special circumstance and provide the required documentation. The Division will not accept any requests that do not indicate the reason and include the required documentation.

Once the Division receives a request, it may only be withdrawn by written request; however, if the non-requesting party objects to the withdrawal, action to complete the review will continue.

A review could result in an upward or downward modification or indicate no modification is warranted at this time.
